

Comino Tower

ISLAND OF COMINO

The Santa Marija Tower on Comino formed part of the early system of towers which the Order set up to facilitate defence and communication between the Cittadella in Gozo and Mdina. It later became a key location in the system of towers built along the coast. The decision to build this Tower was taken by Grand Master Aloff de Wignacourt in 1618, and was financed by the Grand Master himself.

The site is some eighty metres above sea level, making it a wonderful vantage point for visitors to admire the views from its roof top, as well as providing a dramatic setting for the tower itself, which has featured in various films and documentaries.
